

The image displays a comprehensive genomic map of the human genome. At the top, the 24 chromosomes are arranged in a standard karyotype. Below this, a large track shows the sequence of the human genome, with each letter (A, C, G, T) colored. The sequence is organized into a grid, with columns representing different genomic regions. The bottom track shows the positions of various genes and features, with labels for each.